

UNIVERSITÀ
DEGLI STUDI
FIRENZE

DSG
DIPARTIMENTO
DI SCIENZE GIURIDICHE

ADIR
CENTRO DI RICERCA INTERUNIVERSITARIO
SU CARCERE, DEVIANZA, MARGINALITÀ
E GOVERNO DELLE MIGRAZIONI

DSG
DIPARTIMENTO DI ECCELLENZA

DOTTORATO DI RICERCA IN SCIENZE GIURIDICHE

5 April - 24 May, 2019 | 15.30

Campus di Novoli
Building D4 | Room 2.17
via delle Pandette 35, Firenze

PROGETTO PRIN 2015

SOGGETTO DI DIRITTO E VULNERABILITÀ

MODELLI ISTITUZIONALI E CONCETTI GIURIDICI IN TRASFORMAZIONE

CYCLE OF SEMINARS ON VULNERABILITY, SECURITY AND HUMAN RIGHTS

HOMO MEDICUS AND COMMODIFICATION A BIOETHICAL PERSPECTIVE

The Homo Medicus (HM) has emerged as an individual who is expected to be responsible for their own health, e.g. by engaging in activities of prevention or constant monitoring of vital parameters. The HM paradigm is based on a notion of health as potentially being always incomplete, or in suspension, and thus in a condition of permanent infra-pathologisation. Despite it feeds the utopian achievement of a total health, the HM is contributing to shift the core of healthcare organisation from the state of health to a condition of risk. Therefore building on former debates on healthcare and body commodification, the present cycle of seminars aims at answering to the following questions: to what extent can the HM can be seen as a new vulnerable subject? What role should national governments play in light of the spread of the HM? What kind of legal tools can be developed in order to protect individuals and guarantee effectiveness to right to health? How can bioethics contribute to tackle the ethical implications of the HM paradigm?

5 April

Human rights and genetic research

Individual rights and state responsibility

Guest Judit Sandor | Central European University, Budapest

12 April

Human rights and commodification of childhood

Guest Bobbie Farsides | Sussex University

10 May

Vulnerability and the sale of human organs: a global challenge

Guest Roberto Andorno | University of Zurich

24 May

Neoliberalism and commodification of women

Guest Adrienne Evans | Coventry University

Scientific coordination
Lucia Re & Carlo Botrugno

Further info
www.adir.unifi.it/ruebes.htm